HONORED BY SPAIN

CAPT IRISH, OF NEWPORT DECORATED BY KING ALFONSO

From the Providence, (R.I.) Press.]

Alfonso XII King of Spain has conferred a most distinguished honor upon a worthy citizen of Rhode Island and resident of Newport, in the person of Captain Joseph Irish, commanding the revenue steamer Dexter at this station. In the month of September, 1878 while Captain Irish, then in command of the revenue steamer Hamilton, was cruising about the capes of Delaware he learned that there was an Italian barque in the offing, having on board the wrecked crew of a foreign man of war, who required immediate assistance. He promptly sent an officer and a boat and found a number of persons with the crew of the Spanish steam sloop-of-war Pizarro, which had foundered at sea. The party numbered upward of two hundred, and Capt Irish tendered the services of the Hamilton for their removal, and supplied them with accommodations on board. He then bore away to the Delaware breakwater that he might facilitate their conference with their minister resident. Subsequently the officers of the Spanish Legation boarded the Hamilton, and took charge of their fellow countrymen to New York, where they met the Charge d'Affairs, representing Minister Prado, who had returned to Spain. The officers and crew of the Hamilton were highly complimented and gratefully thanked by the officers of the Pizarro, and the Legation and Charge d'Affairs also found occasion to express their appreciation and gratitude for the valuable service rendered. The crew were subsequently transferred to the receiving ship, Colorado, Commander Nickerson, at the Brooklyn Navy-yard, while the officers were made comfortable at the best hotels. Capt Irish extended every possible courtesy in his power and the leave taking was fraught with mutual expressions of good will and friendly sentiment.

The Spanish government upon receipt of information relative to the pleasant service performed by Captain Irish sent official communications to the Department of State and Treasury Department at Washington, conveying their deep appreciation and grateful recognition of the valuable assistance extended to their wrecked crew, and Minister Lowell, then resident in Spain, had an official communication to the effect. Department alluded to the earnest desire on the part of the Spanish government to confer the naval order of merit upon the gallant captain. In the latter part of the year the Secretary of the Treasury addressed a communication to Congress with reference to the matter and a bill was introduced by Representative Eames, of this State, that authority might be granted for the bestowal of the decoration action upon which was delayed. Then Representative Aldrich became interested in the matter, and introduced another bill, which, after amendment by the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, was approved Jan 31st, 1881. This act in substance gave authority for the reception of a decoration from a foreign government, but prohibited its exposure on the person, and provided that it should be tendered to the individual through the Department of State, and not delivered, save by act of Congress. In March last, the Secretary of the Treasury made application to the Secretary of State for the reception of the decoration and order, and the following reply was given by Secretary Frelinghuysen:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5, 1882.

The Hon Charles J. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury

SIR—I have the honor with reference to the letter of your Department of the 21st of March last to transmit herewith a package containing the decoration and the order given by the Spanish government to Captain Irish, of the revenue cutter Hamilton, and to advert at the same time to the terms of the act of January 31, 1881, allowing the acceptance of the same. I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

FREDERICK T FRELINGHUYSEN

Accompanied as above

Upon the reception of the valuable package Secretary Folger addressed the following communication to Captain Irish, which speaks for itself

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
WASHINGTON D. C. Jan 13 1882

Capt Joseph Irish Commanding Revenue Steamer Dexter Newport R I

SIR—I take pleasure in transmitting herewith a letter of the Honorable the Secretary of State, dated the 5th instant, enclosing the Grand Cross of Naval Merit of the second class, and accompanying diploma conferred upon you by the Spanish government, in recognition of the valuable assistance rendered by the Revenue Steamer Hamilton, under your command, to the officers and crew, of the shipwrecked Spanish sloop-of-war Pizarro, in September, 1878, also an extract from the act of Congress, approved Jan. 31, 1881, authorizing your acceptance of the said decoration. Very respectfully,

CHARLES J. FOLGER, Secretary.

Captain Irish received the magnificent decoration, diploma and official papers by mail on Sunday last, on the return from a short cruise, and is naturally enough greatly pleased at the reception of such distinguished honors. The decoration is known as the "Grand White Cross of the Order of Naval Merit," and was confined in a satin-lined morocco case, bearing the Spanish seal and the inscription, "A. XII." signifying King Alfonso. It consists of an eight-pointed star of silver bullion in layers crowning to the centre, and resting thereon is relievo is the grand cross of white enamel to which clings an anchor of blue enamel with a stock of red enamel. The cross is relieved by a setting of fine gold, and is surmounted by a gold crown on a background of garnet enamel. The solidity and finished workmanship afford ample evidence of its high value, while its elegance of design and striking beauty appeal most irresistibly to the admiration of connoisseurs in decorative art. Also accompanying the decoration was the diploma of membership in the Order signed by King Alfonso, and countersigned by the Minister of Marine. The documents, of course, written in the Spanish language, and is kindly translated for us by Prof. Charles J Gates, of this city, as follows:

DIPLOMA OF GRAND CROSS OF THE SECOND CLASS OF THE ORDER OF NAVAL MERIT FOR CAPTAIN JOSEPH IRISH, COMMANDING THE STEAM CUTTER HAMILTON, OF THE UNITED STATES.

[Duplicate.]

DON ALFONSO XII, CONSTITUTIONAL KING OF SPAIN.

According to the provisions in the statutes of the Order of Naval Merit and with reference to what was done by you, Captain Joseph Irish, commanding the cutter Hamilton, of the United States navy, upon the occasion of the shipwreck of the Spanish War steamer Pizarro, whose crew were treated by you with the most solicitous attention during the time they remained on the vessel under your command, I have decided to confer upon you the Cross of the Second Class of the Order of Naval Merit, with the use of the distinctive cross appertaining to the fifth article of the said statutes for the reward of specially eminent services.

Therefore I command all officers both general and pertaining to all the corps of the navy, those of all arms and ranks in the army, intendants, ministers, authorities and functionaries of other branches, to recognize and hold you as a Chevalier of the Second Class of the said Order of Naval Merit preserving for you all the distinctions which belong thereto. And the whole I direct that the Captain General of superior officer under whose orders you may be serving shall place on you the aforesaid Cross of the Second Class of Naval Merit, by virtue of the present diploma, signed by me and countersigned by the Minister of Marine.

Given at the palace the 19th of October, 1881.

I, THE KING

Seal of the Ministry of Marine

FRANCISCO PAULO PAVIA.

Capt Irish was born in Newport, and at 25 years of age was appointed third lieutenant in the revenue service, in 1863 serving on board the U S S Constitution, attached to the Naval Academy station at Newport. He passed through the several grades with distinction, and was appointed a captain in 1874. He is now in command of the revenue steamer Dexter, at this station and has won hosts of friends by his strict attention to duty and uniform courtesy and urbanity of manner, who will rejoice at his reception of such distinguished honors from the Spanish government, believing that they have been most worthily bestowed and that faithful and efficient service has met with just reward

OVER THE OCEAN

HOW LONDON LOOKED TO A YOUNG LADY OF ARCOSTOOK

LONDON, July 10 1881

This is not an immaculate sheet I'm sorry to say, but it's only London cinders that cover everything, and are quite discouraging to any attempts at cleanliness * * * But all this is trivial for Sabbath evening, especially when I went to church this morning at Westminster Abbey. Think of it! I never have realized so thoroughly before that this is London we are in, for to say the truth this boarding place is too, too American, and we never meet any but American people, and what is the sense of crossing the ocean for foreign experiences and immediately planting yourself in a fine nest of your own countrymen. So we remove, to-morrow, I mean Tuesday, to quarters at once more aristocratic and less expensive viz, Cavendish Square Welbeck Street.

More agreeable, too, we hope to find it, and certainly more English—no other, in fact than the place where Mrs. B and party lodged. Isn't that nice for us? Mrs M and her daughter seemed very glad, indeed to hear from their quartette, and we were glad to find people so much interested in our friend. We would be flattered to learn, it must be confessed, that our friends are equally interested in us, for in a whole fortnight from home without a sign of a letter from any direction is a little tough—especially when it seems like two months, at least, since we bade you all good-by at Hoboken. The answer! "No!" to our inquiries for letters three times a day, by getting a trifle monotonous and it seems something doesn't come to-morrow, I shall apply for admittance to an asylum. I don't know but I shall come to that pass, anyway for the ——s stay through the week, for the war we are being rushed about is fearful. But it has this advantage for M and me, that we are getting our bearings very fast, and finding out what we want to see again more leisurely, and to read up about when we are once fairly settled and independent. We have visited or rather peeped, at the British Museum South Kensington, Madame Tussard's and the Zoo. Besides, a deal of sight seeing among the most fascinating shops you can imagine. We have also tried the cabs, the 'busses and the underground railway, which last we found frightfully disagreeable, and propose to give a wide berth in the future. This afternoon we had special tickets to the Zoological Garden, a lovely drive of more than a mile through what seemed to be a park—Regent's Park, Mr. Baedecker informs me—brought us to the gardens, which are beautiful in themselves, and filled with curious animal life that would have delighted your childish mind, and could not but interest you at your present time of life. They have everything there—will that do? and we saw the creations and the land hoofed, and the elephants walk around. Not the least remarkable shows in the menagerie were the——well, I hardly know what to call them—small boys they would be in America, but that term seems quite out of place, applied to the sturdy specimens in light trousers, and blue coats that were meant for swallow tails, only the tails were cut off in a point behind, and to cap the climax, (or the boys, as you please, full grown stove pipe hats. I trust these young gentlemen will excuse me, but really, I forget to mention the canes. We met a crowd of doctors there, and exchanged salutations for to-morrow and Thursday evening's receptions.

One of the most entertaining places we have visited was Mme Tussard's, where we met all the kings and queens, from Wm I, down, also Lord Byron, Gen Garfield, and a policeman who nearly took my breath away, he was so life-like and looked at me so solemnly. Positively, I felt as if I were behaving with great rudeness to stare all these great people in the face and examine their festive garments so narrowly. Queen Emma th, I have discovered, has a mouth like mine, just about the same size, and with the same willful determined expression. I dislike her more than ever. You will see by this scribble, my dear, that we have by no means settled down to any thing like solid work as yet. Everything is so new and strange, and we are so eager to see it all at once, and keep ourselves all together in such an excited, topsy-turvy fashion, that it is simply impossible to sleep, and quite so to write correctly of anything we have seen.

July 12th. * * * Now that we are in great London City, with so much all about us that is delightful and distracting, we are in a constant whir of excitement. We came last Wednesday and have not rested a day, hardly a minute, until to-day. We have been "doing" London in the true American fashion, so far, because we wanted to be with the W——s, and their time was limited. So we have merely glanced at a few of the more notable objects of interest, intending to re-visit most of them at our leisure. It is fun, this finding your way around a new city, but you have heard about, and dreamed about all your life, but never fully realized its existence till you stepped into it. We read with thrills of romantic repellent on the name of each new street we find our way to, as Regent, Oxford, Tottenham Court Road, especially Fleet street, the Strand, Chancery, —and a host of others. I begin to wish now that I were a little more familiar with Dickens and Thackeray, but their stories will be doubly interesting when I do read them, and just here, I advise you when you are reading anything that refers to the city, to provide yours it with a good map of London and find out every place that is mentioned. The more familiar you can make yourself with the city and its surroundings before you visit it, the better. M and I begin to feel that it is the city of the world, for its immensity is simply overpowering.

Once in a while it gives me a sort of stifled feeling and a longing for the green, green country that we traveled in coming from Southampton. The glimpses we had of high, luxuriant hedges of holly and all varieties of shrubbery, the groups of tall trees, their trunks covered with every species of ivy, the brilliant little poppies and other "corn flowers" grow ng as thickly in with the grain, all hint to us of what we may expect to find in the heart of England. It seems very strange, too, to be in the city in the summer-time, but every body says it is the right season to visit London, it is so dull and gloomy through the winter. M and I start at once with the bravest intentions of walking from one place to another, that seemed on the map to be so near by, and thereby saving our cab fares (to buy lace, you know), but after blistering our feet and then finding ourselves about a third of the way to our destination, we have been glad enough to have recourse to the cabs and 'busses.

The Ransom cabs, especially with their driver perched high up on a box behind, and seats for two people, are extremely comfortable and convenient, for they are omnipresent, you hardly have to wait a moment to hail one, and they take you anywhere, or a reasonable compensation, in the quickest possible time. In walking or driving about, we have been surprised by the abundance of flowers everywhere. Everybody has a window-box, often made of pretty tiles, and always filled with a variety of brightly blooming plants and Jacquemot rose sell on the streets for a penny each. They do much to lighten the sombre appearance of the houses (the shops are gay enough, I assure you, without them) that look so old and dark and flat, for never a swell front is to be seen.

M and I find ourselves quite alone for the first time, to-night, having left the W——s on Torrington Square, where the two old ladies were eating up our substance at a ruinous rate, and taken lodgings in the pure English fashion. We have a large front room for a bedroom, and the use of a sitting room, with such attendance as you never find at home, at least, in a lodging house. We order our own meals and sit down together as cosily as you please, with a maid to wait on us. If you could but look in on us now, and examine the quaint furnishings of our room, especially the brass bedstead that I will not try to covet. But it is mine for to-night, and I must very soon take possession, for it is growing late, and we have a hard day's work before us to-morrow.

F. J.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Journal says Mr James Wagg, of Auburn, a gentleman of about sixty years met with an accident, Thursday evening in which he almost miraculously escaped criminal injuries. He was engaged in hauling green wood and had half a cord of wood on his sled. He fell between his cattle and the sled and the load passed over him. It fortunately happened that he had lengthwise with the sled, and the runners did not pass over him, but he was snugly squeezed between the sled bottom and the road. He was bruised and was found lying in a partly insensible condition, but shortly recovered.

Aroostook

A correspondent writes to the Lewiston Journal; Mrs Mehitable Ambrose, mother of James W Ambrose, Esq., of Sherman and the eldest inhabitant, aged 89 years, 1 month and 23 days, died on the 8th inst. She arose as usual and dressed herself on the morning of the day before. Hearing a sound as of a fall from her room, Mr Ambrose went in and found her lying on the floor, in a position, in which state she remained until 11 o'clock the next day when she died. Her mental and physical faculties remained remarkably good to the last. She was a consistent christian and for more than fifty years a member of a Baptist church. Mr. George Philips, a worthy citizen of Sherman, died on the 10th inst., of pneumonia. He was buried with Masonic honors, on Thursday week. He was about 45 years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

The Argus reports a mass meeting to be held in Portland Monday evening to protest against Mormonism. Remarks will be made by Hon. Lot M Morrill and Judge Goddard, Rev. Asa Dalton, Hon Geo F Emery and Rev D Seward. It is expected that resolutions will be adopted expressive of the sentiment of our citizens as regards the Mormon question.

An old lady in Portland by the name of Martha Winslow, who had always been regarded as an object of charity, and cared for by certain ladies, died some time ago, and since her death it has transpired that she was the possessor of the snug little sum of $1300!

The News says that Thomas Smith of Bridgton is bringing up the rear guard of his apple brigade. He has sent to Boston over six thousand barrels and has put out for apples this fall and winter fourteen thousand dollars. Even in a small margin he will make a handsome sum.

The Argus says Mr Jordan belonging at Capel Elizabeth was driving a sled loaded with cabbages in Portland, Friday afternoon, got the shoe of the sled caught in the railroad track, just as a freight train was backing down. The engineer of the train tried to slow down, but found it impossible and the locomotive struck the rear of the sled, pushing it along the track for some distance. One of the horses was knocked down and dragged along with it. The sled was badly smashed and the cabbages strewn in the street, but the horses were scarcely any injured.

Franklin.

The Phonograph, says that there was a narrow escape from a fatal accident, at Madrid, last Monday. Willard C. Perry, a deaf and dumb lad, aged twenty one and lived with his grandfather D. C. Perry was going to the trap which he had set for a fox when he carried a gun over his shoulder, the muzzle forward, and grasping the barrel in one hand. Stubbing his toe he fell, and the gun was also thrown forward, the hammer striking solid on some hard substance. The muzzle of the gun came in contact with the region of the boy's heart, bruising his body by the force of the blow. The gun was discharged, but was thrown sideways enough to merely save the boy's life, as the charge tore away his clothing and set it on fire.

The Record says Mrs. Lucy Smith aged eighty two years, residing with her daughter, Mrs. Francis L. Ellis, in Wilton, has within the past year, cut and pieced together four diamond quilts, thirteen hundred and fifteen diamonds in a quilt, bound three quilts, and finished said quilts after they were tied, made two dresses, five aprons, and hemmed twenty-eight towels and napkins, made a suit of clothes and a pair of shirts for a boy, knit five pairs of stockings, footed two pairs, knit thirty-two yards of edging from two inches to four in width besides nine yards seven inches, and sewed twenty-five pounds of carpet rags.

Kennebec.

The Augusta Journal says Riding up and down the Kennebec, on the Maine Central, the river presents an animated appearance. From below Richmond to Hallowell, the ice fields are covered with men and horses, engaged in scraping and planing the surface. Some companies will begin to cut Monday. The ice is now ten inches thick, and of magnificent quality. The outlook is very favorable for a full crop being harvested on the Kennebec. Operators do not anticipate any fabulous prices for ice, next summer, on account of the large stock of old ice on the Hudson, and to the large number of local companies who are going into the business, in Maine, this winter. In nearly every town along the coast, ice will be put up in small quantities. It will take about four weeks of good weather to fill the Kennebec river ice houses.

The Journal says Samuel Wood an aged farmer of Augusta, died very suddenly, Friday, of heart disease.

Knox.

The Opinion says. Captain Packard, master of the wrecked Almon Bird, of Rockland, is making good progress toward recovery, though it must necessarily be a long time before he will be able to use his feet, which were so badly frozen. Their appearance is, however, very much improved within a week. The swelling has almost wholly left them, and the inflammation has decreased noticeably. The flesh at the end of some of the toes appears to be dead and will have to be removed, which is the only operation that will be necessary in the case. His general health is good.

York

The Argus says: The Boston & Maine has settled with Mrs. John Dixon, of Ogunquit who was injured in the late accident. She received $300. Her injuries consisted simply of bruises.

ST. NICHOLAS.

This illustrated magazine for young folks has now attained a circulation larger, probably, than that of any other monthly magazine of its class. It has been entitled "a marvel of perfection, both as regards its literary excellence and as to its mechanical merit." It was the first to give to boys and girls the very best illustrations that could be had, and has earned the name of

"The Children's Art Magazine."

The greatest living writers of Europe and America among its

Distinguished Contributors,

Charles Dudley Warner, Henry W. Longfellow, John G. Whittier, H. H. Boyesen, Noah Brooks, Bret Harte, Lucretia P. THE BEST OF THE AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES.

Enlargement for 1882.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture. Its large and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of execution, in quality of paper and style of publication, it confesses the First Place. It is believed to have no superior in either of the three chief divisions of

Farm Crops & Processes, Horticulture & Fruit-Growing, Live Stock and Dairying, while it also includes a full minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee Culture, Correspondence with Practical Veterinary Regime, Farm Questions and Answers, Rural Miscellany, Humor, Enigmas, and a Summary of the News of the Week. The MARKET REPORTS are unusually complete, and in addition to being published in the Country Gentleman, are issued each week in a separate sheet, with the latest information up to the hour of publication. The Rural Register and Almanac for 1882 will be published in December, and will be sent free to all subscribers for 1882 who remit promptly.

The Volume of the COUNTRY GENTLEMAN for 1882 will be LARGELY INCREASED in extent, and by the addition of a number of pages to the regular form of the paper. Whether additional engravings will be given depends upon the space required by the text, but the publishers intend to use them freely, when they will greatly increase the interest and value of the paper. The additional pages will be printed from fresh type, and the general appearance of the paper will be improved.

TERMS: $2 00 a year, in advance; Two Copies for $3 00; Five Copies for $8 00; and an additional copy for the list for the getter up of the Club. TEN COPIES, $20, and one extra copy to the person getting up the Club. Specimen copies sent free.
